PRICE THREE CENTS.

SAVED FROM DROWNING BY FRANK ELLINWOOD.

Stranger upset in Canoe in Roxbury Pond Sunday.

By timely aid from Ellinwood his life was saved.

Frank Ellinwood, barber at Gilcrest's, rescued an unknown man at Roxbury Pond last Sunday at about 1 o'clock p. m. Ellinwood, who is an expert swimmer, paddled out to the floating bath house in the pond. The canoe which he went out in floated away from the house, and a stranger on the shore caught the boat and started to paddle back with it. The wind was pretty high and the man was not acquainted with the antics of a canoe, and got caught in the trough of the waves, and in a twinkling was in the water. He was evidently not a swimmer for he went under and seemed at the mercy of the waves. Although he struggled hard to keep his head above water he repeatedly went under. Mr. Ellinwood's attention was directed to the man and he swam to his aid. When reached the stranger was nearly exhausted. Mr. Ellinwood got a grip upon the man's coat collar and managed to swim to the canoe. By clinging to the boat he managed to get safely ashore.

C. J. LEARY.

"THE ALL SMOOTH MAN."

Every one knows about the "All Smooth Man," and the Oxford, Strathglass and Leary's Perfecto—they all have the highest reputation among the connoisseurs, and have a large sale in this section.

It is not every one who knows the "All Smooth Man" who manufactures them; or that he has a manufactory on Waldo street where he employs five men throughout the year. Mr. C. J. Leary is a man well known here. He came here from Bath two years ago, when he had been making the "All Smooth" cigar and had acquired the reputation of "The All Smooth Man," which distinction he is certainly entitled to, for he is a genial, open-hearted man whom every one likes to meet and do business with.

C. J. LEARY.

There prevailed a custom in Bath of answering the question "How are you today?" by saying "All Smooth." Mr. Leary named his famous cigar from that.

An Italian cigar dealer, who could not recall Mr. Leary's name, sent an order to "The All Smooth Man" for a box of his "All Right" cigars. "All Smooth" fitted Mr. Leary so well that the boys caught on and he became known as the "All Smooth Man."

The factory on Waldo street is one of the cleanest and best kept of any of the hundreds that the writer has visited in different parts of the country. Mr. Leary takes great pride in having the shop in the best possible sanitary condition and always gives his personal attention to every detail of the business.

The "All Smooth" is a mild cigar, and of very fragrant aroma. The Oxford is medium strong and a popular brand. The Strathglass and Perfecto are made from pure Havana tobacco and stand at the head of good sellers in Oxford county.

Mr. Leary is an accomplished musician, and plays the tuba, violin and bass viol, and is a member of the Rumford Falls band, and an all round useful and popular citizen.

GAMBLER ALL NIGHT.

Frank Batters Accuses his Fellow Gambler with Stealing what had been lost, and more with it.

Respondent Bound over in Sum of $200.

Frank Batters, an Italian living at Smith's Crossing, had another Italian, named Calisando, arrested Monday morning, charged with stealing $46. Glendon and Blanchard appeared for the respondent and McCarthy for the state. The respondent pleaded not guilty.

Batters testified, through an interpreter, that he keeps a beer shop at Smith's Crossing. Sunday night he played cards with Calisando. They discontinued the game at about 4 o'clock Monday morning. Batters then undressed and went to bed, leaving the respondent in the house. When he lay down he had $46 in his trousers pocket. After he had got in bed, Calisando kept asking him to get up and play some more. He then fell asleep and when he woke up five or ten minutes later, looked for Calisando and found him gone. He looked for his money and found that gone. He then called in Lawrence Lavorn, an educated Italian living in the neighborhood, and together they went to the place where Calisando boards. They got him to open his trunk and found bank books showing a deposit of $210, and that $200 had just been drawn out. They also found a check or receipt showing that $200 had been sent to Italy, and that he had $46 in his pocketbook in the trunk, the bills being the same denomination as Batters claims were stolen—one 20 dollar bill, two tens, one five and a one. Batters identified, or said he could, the one dollar bill by marks on it.

Cross examination conducted by Attorney Gleason brought out the fact that the two men played cards for 25c, 50c, and $1.00 a game, and that Batters quit and went to bed when Calisando had lost all his funds. Calisando wanted to continue the game on credit, but Batters would not. Calisando would not put up his bank book.

At this point the judge and attorneys conferred and Mr. Gleason decided not to put in any testimony for his client.

After consultation with counsel and friends the respondent paid back the amount stolen and the plaintiff acknowledged satisfaction and the case was not pressed on payment of costs by the respondent.

Officer Roach then swore out a warrant charging both men with gambling, and Judge Stearns fined both men $10 and costs on this charge.

MORE ABOUT BRIDGE MOVING.

The man who proposed that the Bridge street bridge should be moved called at the CITIZEN office, Friday and dictated the following statement. "When Jule Verne wrote 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea,' he gave scientific minds something to think about, and while they scorned the idea that he put forth they went to work on the under the sea navigation plan and now the idea is in practical operation.

"They called Verne a crank and even some said he was no better than a fool for advancing such a plan. Everybody who comes forward with a new idea or plan is bound to be looked at. I notice a correspondent of the CITIZEN thinks my plan for moving the bridge is a crazy one and that I am influenced by selfish motives.

"The fact is that it makes no difference to me where the bridge is. I would be as well suited with the bridge as it is now, but knowing that the town really needed the bridge in the place I proposed, I just put my wits to work to solve the problem at an expense that the town could afford. I gave you the scheme for what it was worth and intended to let the people thresh it out, and if it was feasible adopt it, if not reject it. I did not expect to have people accuse me of being a busy body and sarcastically suggest that I might be 'given leave to withdraw the proposition.' It is this style of fighting that discourages a fellow from trying to do anything to benefit the community.

I will say that the plan I outlined to you provides that the new bridge shall be 65 or 70 feet high so that there will be no pitch to the approach of the bridge on the west side. I find that many prominent men have endorsed the plan. I maintain that it is a good solution of the bridge problem; but as I have no interest in the matter other than the welfare of the town, I shall not trouble myself any more about it."

SIXTY DAYS IN WHICH TO GET WELL.

Joe Smith was before Judge Stearns Friday morning for the third time, on the charge for drunkenness. He was sentenced to 60 days in jail. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Elliott Thursday night, and as he was being taken to the station in an automobile he made a jump for liberty and sprang down the lane to the flats from Waldo street. The officer pursued him, and the people of that locality were treated to an entertainment of a realistic nature. The officer captured his man after a scrimmage. When Smith was locked up and the excitement of the case was over he began to feel the pangs of what proved to be a broken bone in his ankle. He will have just the necessary number of weeks in which to get well.

VISITED THE JAMES TOWN EXPOSITION.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Farmer have recently returned from a trip to the south, taking in the Jamestown Exposition and other places of interest. Mr. Farmer is the librarian at the public library, and while away visited many libraries and took note of things that may be of material benefit to the library here.

It may be of interest, in passing, to say that while visiting the exposition one can very conveniently live at Norfolk, about five miles out. The trips to and fro are made either by trolley or steamer. Mrs. Farmer says that the boat trip in the evening gives a splendid view of one of the most gorgeous and spectacular sights possible to behold. That is the lights of the exposition grounds. In her experience she has seen nothing to compare with that spectacle for brilliancy and inspiring beauty.

While there they visited the library at Norfolk and also at Hampton. The latter has 25,000 volumes. In the Norfolk library, which is a Carnegie institution, the system of allowing the patrons access to the book stalls was tried and abandoned. It was found that the privilege was abused. At the exposition the Congressional library has an interesting exhibit.

They report that the exposition is much more complete and worth seeing than they had been led to expect. The government buildings and exhibits are very fine. Mrs. Farmer spoke particularly of the Pennsylvania building. While in Norfolk they visited a Negro Baptist church and were surprised to find a strictly modern style of service; and in fact the church and the attendants and surroundings were so high toned as to be embarrassing to a native of Puritan soil.

The inevitable midway is to be found at the exposition, but is called the "warpath." After exhausting the south land, Mr. and Mrs. Farmer came north and spent some time in New Hampshire. They left Rumford Falls June 30th, and returned the first of August.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

The Tennis Club held a meeting Monday night and made arrangements for an all day tournament labor day. This will be the star day in the history of this popular club. Refreshments will be served during the day so that players and visitors will not be obliged to leave the grounds for meals.

LIQUOR SEIZURE IN MEXICO.

Deputy Sheriff Perkins raided the place kept by Mrs. Pasquella De Rossio on the lower flats, below the old Porter bridge, Sunday. He secured 32 gallons and 13 bottles of beer. He had no evidence of a sale, and no arrests were made.

AN ORDERLY WELL CONDUCTED EXCURSION.

A Credit to the Maine Central Railroad.

A Trip Across the Lake, Dinner at Rangeley.

Both for the pleasure of the trip and to observe the character of the excursion at close range, the manager of the CITIZEN went on the excursion Sunday to the lakes.

A finer day was never given to saint or sinner, and so far as ideal conditions go to make for happiness, nothing was lacking. Long before train time those on excursion boat were hurrying to the station. The character of the crowd was good, and if any one was waiting to see whether or not there was to be an orderly and well-mannered lot of excursionists before deciding to go, they surely would have made one of the party.

The train trip was without incident or accident, and one would not have known the passengers were excursionists from any demonstration made. Many, including the writer, left the train at South Rangeley and took the delightful sail across the lower lake to Rangeley village.

The Rangeley Lakes Steamboat Company have a sturdy little steamer at the wharf, within ten rods of the M. C. R. R. station, in command of Capt. Tyler.

The boat bears just the single name "Rangeley," and as that is its destination the name serves a double purpose, and saves strangers asking where the boat is going. The sail across the lake is enjoyable in the extreme—the eyes feast upon the landscape, which, at the shores, is either woodland or green fields, with here and there one of the many cottages that line the shore, in view. The background—the seemingly impassable barriers to the country beyond—is made up of the towering, rugged hills, whose majesty and beauty have entranced the philosopher and poet alike, and made "The Rangeleys" famous the world over.

Not long after leaving the wharf at South Rangeley, there appears in view a collection of houses that remind one of the play villages made of block houses in childhood days. Presently the houses look larger, and one becomes conscious that Rangeley village lies before them and about the same time, a large, well shaped building with high turrets on either end, to the right of the village, comes in view, and Capt. Tyler, if he happens to be near, will nod in the direction of the big house and say, "Rangeley Lake House." One becomes instantly all attention, for the fame of that hotel is not confined to any one county. Guests from every part of the world have been entertained there. One is also interested, for that is where dinner is to be had, and from all one has heard, a royal feast is anticipated.

Arriving at the village wharf, Capt. Tyler takes pains to inform everyone that the return trip will begin at 2:40 p. m. The two hours and forty minutes gives time to see the village, get dinner and enjoy a lazy half hour on the hotel veranda, watching the bathers, the row and sail boats, and the inspiring scenery spreading in every direction.

The Rangeley Lake House is managed in a thoroughly metropolitan style, and is elegantly fitted. At present there are over two hundred guests at the house, and Sunday dinners far in excess of that number are served.

Notwithstanding the transient guests Sunday, there was no bustle or confusion. The service was rendered as regularly and quietly as on other days.

The style of service is equal to the best metropolitan hotels, but the thing that counts is the quality of the viands. The cooking is done in the very best manner. It matters not what is ordered, it is prepared and seasoned to the taste of connoisseurs—for the men and women who stop there are those who know and demand the very highest quality, and the management knows how to supply it.

On its return trip Sunday, the "Rangeley" stops at the hotel wharf. The return trip is on the opposite side of the lake, giving, on both trips, a full view of the shore and mountain scenery at close range. On a warm day the lake breeze is one of the most stimulating tonics the work weary man or woman can indulge in.

The majority of the excursionists kept on to Oquossoc, a mile or so beyond South Rangeley, where they spent the day rowing or sailing or in quiet seclusion in some shady nook. The writer has the satisfaction of saying that, returning, the crowd was as orderly as going, and none of the more or less common and disagreeable features of excursions were present.

In fact it was the best conducted public excursion the manager of the CITIZEN ever participated in; and whatever one's private opinion of the desirability of Sunday excursions may be, the above must be acknowledged, in justice to the people going on them, and the railroad and steamboat management conducting them.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

Monday night Mr. Jesse Barker, the Waldo street truckman, was struck by an auto owned and operated by Mr. Littlefield. His horse was thrown down, and Mr. Barker and a passenger named Peter Perry, pitched headlong into the street. The wagon, two seated Concord, was broken, and the harness pretty badly damaged.

Mr. Barker was bruised about the head and face, and his left leg was also hurt. He was otherwise injured and will be laid up for several days. The horse has seemed dazed since the accident, and refuses his feed. Mr. Barker says he was returning from the 8 o'clock train, and had reached a point on Waldo street about opposite the fire station, when he saw the auto rapidly approaching. He reined his horse into the gutter, but the machine seemed to make a curve towards the team, and although Mr. Barker shouted, the auto struck him, with the above results. Mr. Littlefield said he would pay for the repairs on the wagon.

IT IS NEEDED.

A public inventory near the footbridge would be a public blessing. It would make it possible for women and children to make use of the grove along the river banks for recreation purposes. The present conditions make such use of the grove, on the east side particularly, very unpleasant.

FOR SALE.—Span of work horses; weight 2800; 8 or 9 years old; sound; good workers. Inquire at CITIZEN OFFICE.

FINED $100 FOR SELLING LIQUOR.

Andrew Corsane was fined $100 for selling liquor. Judge Stearns imposed the fine Friday last. Corsane was an attendant in the Soule club on Waldo street. Thursday night Deputies Poor and Elliott made a descent upon the club rooms and caught the man, Corsane or Corsane, in the act of serving drinks. They had previously seen him taking money from the frequenters of the club. The officers had watched the business through a hole in the wall of the club room. A large quantity of beer was seized.

SUNDAY AT COLD SPRING PARK.

A large number from Rumford Falls were at Cold Spring Park Sunday, and enjoyed a pleasant day. Addresses were made by Dr. S. Taylor, who also read a poem, and Dr. W. E. Hutchins, and Mr. George A. Hutchins. Mr. C. F. Penley entertained the gathering with graphophone selections. He also provided a dinner of ground baked beans, that was very much enjoyed.

FOR SALE.—3 room, two tenant cottage house. Sewer connections. Spring water. FRANK VAILLANCOURT, 510 Waldo street. C2-31p

WANTED.—Small farm near town or village. Must be cheap for cash. State full particulars. Address, W. B. NOBLE, Georgetown, Me. NC11-2tp

TO PORTLAND HARBOR TUESDAY, AUG. 20.

Merchants Plan Big Excursion.

Special train, Electric cars, Steamer, Shore Dinner and Sail About the Harbor.

The Rumford Board of Trade and the Merchants' Association of Rumford Falls will have their annual excursion August 20th, to Portland Harbor and return. A special train will leave Rumford Falls at 6:45 o'clock Tuesday morning, Aug. 20th. At Portland special electric cars will be in waiting at the station to cross the city to the wharf, where a special steamer will be in readiness to take the excursionists to some island in the harbor.

A shore dinner or clam bake will be served. In the afternoon the steamer will take a sail among the beautiful islands of the harbor, returning to the city in time to take the special train at the Union station at 6 o'clock.

The Rumford Falls band will be in attendance. The railroad fare will be $1.25 for the round trip; the steambath fare will be 20 cents, and the dinner will be about 75 cents. If the day is stormy, the same arrangements will be carried out on Thursday.

The annual merchants' holiday is the one day in the year when our merchants can forget the cares of business, and give themselves up to fun and frolic. They have made a great success of the day in former years, and it is hoped this year to exceed all former events of the kind. We have no fear but Rumford Falls people will turn out and make such a creditable showing that the occasion will reflect the importance of the town to the rest of the state.

25 ACRES COVERED WITH PULP.

Harry Hutchins, who owns a large farm just beyond the Rumford line, in Bethel, situated on the east side of the river, has a large lot of pulp that he has no use for. About 25 acres of grass land has been covered with a deposit of pulp, that in some places covers the ground with a solid flooring a quarter to a third of an inch thick. The deposit was mostly made during the high water period this spring. The pulp is waste from the Berlin mills, and has been accumulating on the river bottom for years, and when the water is disturbed and high it comes to the surface, and is deposited along the banks, and on the land that is overflowed.

There are several acres, in different parts of the field where no grass grows through the deposit, but in the greater part it struggles through and some hay can be cut. It is not fit for feed as it makes the animals' mouths sore.

Mr. Hutchins bought a sheet of the dried pulp to show us. It was like baked clay in appearance, and was fully one third of an inch thick.

The deposit has been noticed for a number of years in small quantities, but this is the first time it has covered so much land and been too thick for grass to grow through.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Ought to be Fixed.

Mr. Editor:

Can't you stir up the powers that be to take some action for the improvement of the road leading to Smith's Crossing? It is in wretched condition along by the grist mill.

Teamster.

To the Editor:

The Island alarm is 26. Two blows of the whistle for the 2, six blows of the whistle for the 6, with sufficient space between the blows to distinguish the numbers. The manner in which they are sounded is not satisfactory to any one living a half mile from the Island; the space between blows is so short that the sounds are all connected together, and make a continuous sound. Nothing definite can be heard. Sunday, the alarm sounded the two, then nine, up to fifteen.

Quite a party went to Albany this morning last Sunday.

I will mail you free, to prove merit samples of my Dr. Shoep's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys, as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoep's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or constipation, use Dr. Shoep's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoep, Racine, Wis. This Restorative is sold by The Red Cross Pharmacy.

The Right Help For Headache

Sherman, Me., Aug. 13, 1906.
"I have used the 'L. F.' Bitters with success for years. They are the only thing I can find to help me when I have an attack of headache."
Respectfully yours,
Mr. George Kneeland.

When sickness comes a dose of "L. F." Atwood's Bitters will work wonders toward making a recovery. They act quickly and beneficially on the whole system, purifying blood, strengthening stomach, cleansing bowels. 35c. at druggists.

Get a free sample of Dr. Shoop's "Health Coffee" at our store. If real coffee disturbs your stomach, your Heart or Kidneys, then try this clever Coffee imitation. Dr. Shoop has closely matched Old Java and Mocha Coffee in flavor and taste, yet it has not a single grain of real coffee in it. Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee imitation is made from pure toasted grains or cereals, with Malt, Nuts, etc. Made in a minute. No tedious wait. You will surely like it. Sold by H. S. Pashard.

PARKER'S HAIR BALM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a natural growth. Restores hair to its natural color. Cures scalp diseases. Hair falls out. 25c. and 50c. at Druggists.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause in congestion, pain in blood pressure—nothing really. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to all he has crossed a little pink tablet. That is Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet. It stops the blood pressure away from pain centers, relaxes contracting, pleases the delicate, gently, and safely, it surely restores the blood circulation.
If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If you are restless, nervous, it's a blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a relief for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop the blood pressure, and the tablets simply distribute the blood pressure.
Build up your finger and doesn't get red, and you will find it. Of course it does its work, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain always. It's simply common sense.
We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and beating-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 33 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had a intense pain in the kidneys and pelvis organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but 50 cents of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-McLean Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Pleasant Evening Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Youth and age have too little sympathy with each other. If the young would remember that they may be old, and the old remember that they have been young, the world would be happier.

Did you ever realize that nothing on earth can smile but a human being? Gems may flash reflected light, but what is a diamond flash? A face that cannot smile is like a bud that cannot blossom, and dies upon the stalk. Laughter is day and sobriety is night, and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both, and more bewitching than either.

Good wives are better conservators of the public peace and morality than policemen, prison statutes, and all the terrors of the law. Let a man be thus home anchored, and have an interest in a house and lot, and except he is radically bad, he becomes a self-appointed guardian of the peace and of public morals.

One drop of ink will blacken a whole glass of pure water. So will one evil communication make the whole world foul. Beware of those evil words. You might drop many, many drops of pure water into the tumbler, but it would have no perceptible influence. So it will take thousands of good precepts and good instructions to root out this one evil word.

Don't harp on past troubles. When we see a pale nervous woman in the midst of her friends preferring to entertain them with a list of the rackings pains she has suffered to a summer in God's free air and sunshine, we cannot wonder that the rose returns not to her blushed cheek. Why is it that to some these memories are very meat and drink? They consume them, the bitter agony is acted over and over again, the tears thrice shed, the place rehearsed where such a dreadful thing occurred, the scar fondly petted that tells of the almost fatal knife.

Profanity never did any man the least good. No man is the richer, the happier, or wiser for it. It commands no one to any society. It is disgusting to the refined; abominable to the good; insulting to those with whom we associate; degrading to the mind; unprofitable, needless and injurious in society. Young man, don't be profane.

Lost wealth may be restored by industry, the work of health regained by temperance; forgotten knowledge restored by study; alienated friendships smoothed into forgetfulness; even forfeited reputation recovered by penitence; but who ever again looked upon his vanished hours recalled his wretched years, stamped them with wisdom, or affixed from heaven's record the fearful blot of wasted time?

Women would be better and happier if men loved them better and were more true to them. If men would strive as hard to make home happy as they do to seek happiness elsewhere, the world would be better. Hours do some when men admit the power, the worth of women. Not in sunshine so much as in shade and storm. When unengrossed with business and rolling on the sea of success we too often forget the ones without whom life would be a blank, and only fly to the heavens of shelter—the love and gentle caresses of women—when the waves are high and to remain abroad is to perish.

Influence of Happy Childhood.

The memory of early happiness is a treasure-house of sweet comforts. Its pure simple, earnest joys become wells to draw from whenever we sit down in thirst and weariness by the dusty highway of life. Of this one good the world can never defraud us. The sunshine in those days reaches across our little stretch of life, and mingles its rays with those that beam from the heaven of our hope. The actual present of the adult life, and the materials of the adult life, are made up, more than we generally suppose, of reminiscence. We ruminate like the kine. We lay up in the receptacles of memory abundance of undigested material that we recall and appropriate to our refreshment and nourishment; and this process of reminiscence, of living over again, grows upon us as we grow into years, until at last it becomes our all. Exhausted power has no resource but to dwell upon its old play and its old achievements. How sad he is who can never go back to his childhood without a shudder. Who can never recall a period when his life was filled with sweet and simple satisfaction. When a kind and loving mother read aloud to the family the Home Circle department from the columns of this paper.

Self Dependence.

Many an unwise parent works hard and lives sparingly all his life for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in the world, as it is called. Setting a young man aloft with money left him by his relatives, is like tying a bladder under the arms of one who cannot swim; tea chances to one he will lose the bladder and go to the bottom. Teach him to swim and he will not need the bladder. Give your child a good education. See to it that his morals are pure, his mind cultivated, and his whole nature made subservient to the laws which govern man, and you will have given what will be of more value than the wealth of the Indies. You have given him a start which no misfortune can deprive him of. The earlier you teach him to depend on his own resources and the blessings of God, the better.

Good Reading.

A taste for good reading has long been observed as one of the most effective safeguards to young men against vice and crime. In the first place, it serves to give employment in those hours of leisure and freedom from work which would be likely otherwise to be worse than wasted. To the young man who has no taste for reading, the evening hours become loaded with temptation. It is tiresome to sit moping by the stove, and he naturally drifts to the street or the card table. There he finds others like himself, with vacant hours to while away and thus grow up those habits and associations which soon overtake in dissipation or lead to crime. We doubt if one instance in a thousand can be found of a young man's making shipwreck of hopes and character who was accustomed to spend his evenings at home reading good books; and we say to any parent that a well stocked library and an abundant supply of news papers and magazines, with the habit of reading on the part of your boy, is worth more to keep him out of mischief, and to make a man of him, than any other single influence at your command.

Base Ball.

The base ball tournament held on the Fair Grounds Saturday, was well attended both forenoon and afternoon. A first game was called at 10:30. The "home" was Norway, 7; Bolster's Mills, 3.

The second game was at 1:30 and in this West Paris won a victory over Turner with the score 12 to 1. Then came the final game with the result West Paris 4 and Norway 1.

The feature of the day's play was the left handed pitching of Delano of West Paris, who pitched all but one third of an inning of both games for West Paris. During the 17-23 innings that he pitched he struck out 22 men and held his opponents to nine scattered hits and allowed them only one run. Delano was in no way responsible for this run, although young Delano has a record any pitcher may be proud of.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membrane lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in our family."

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Bowers & Vallee Co.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 15, 1907.

The proposal to place a fountain at the corner of Franklin and Bridge streets is the most popular suggestion that has been made for the public good for a long while. We hope the matter will be pushed forward to successful completion.

Many a strictly sober and temperate man has been under suspicion of being inebriated as he has passed along on the east side of Congress street. There is a considerable portion of the sidewalk that is so uneven that it is not possible to preserve an even carriage in walking over it. It makes walking awkward and very unpleasant. The women complain quite bitterly of it. It should be fixed. In passing, we might add that the condition of Congress street is such that, in rainy weather it is no credit to the town. The street should be paved. We believe every team owner, automobilist and business man in Rumford will agree with this.

A BAD PAIR.

"Ninety per cent. of the crimes of the United States is due to bad cooking," says Dr. Irion, State health officer of Louisiana. The rhetorical prohibitionist declares that it is due to the demon rum. And doubtless one statement is as far out of the way as the other. Nevertheless, it is true that bad cooking and hard drinking are powerful and prolific incentives to crime. The wise will eschew both.—Exchange.

STATE PRINTING.

In an editorial regarding the state printing for 1903 and 1904, the Waterville Sentinel refers to the 1905-6 bids, as follows: "The Sentinel Company had underbid them on the job work. E. C. Bowler of Bethel had underbid them on the book work. They were entitled to nothing but the legislative work and really not entitled to that because their bid was a conditional one and should not have counted at all, but the Governor and council awarded them the legislative printing and book printing, disregarding Mr. Bowler's bid, so that, when the most favorable construction of the facts, the abolished state printer, was entitled to but one class of state printing, by the help of the Governor and council he got two, and with the assistance of Brother-in-law Boyd, the cream of the third class."

PROHIBITION IN THE SOUTH.

The great wave of temperance that is sweeping over the South is very encouraging to the temperance workers, and is having a healthful moral effect on the country at large.

The fact that such a state as Georgia has really passed a prohibitory law is very surprising. The people of that section have always been free users of liquor, and as a moral sentiment the New England view has had no foothold there.

Granting that the enactment of the law is beneficial to the temperance movement regardless of the motives that impelled its adoption, we cannot find cause to dampen their ardor, by the suggestion that practical rather than sentimental reasons caused the passing of the prohibitory law in Georgia.

The apparent fact is, that it is a part of the effort to solve the race problem. The law prohibiting the sale of liquor has been enacted for the benefit of the negro population. So far as that race is concerned, the law will be rigidly enforced, and must result in moral and industrial benefit to them.

The families of the well-to-do whites in Georgia, that have always had liquor as they have food, will probably continue to use it just the same.

It is to be hoped (and it is quite likely to have that effect) that the benefits of abstinence upon the negro will be an object lesson to the whites that will create a real temperance sentiment among them.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

Believing that exact knowledge promotes co-operation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is publishing a series of brief explanations of some phases of telephony, for the benefit of itself, and, as it hopes, for the benefit of all telephone users.

UNSUSPECTED CAUSES OF "TROUBLE."

Apart from the inevitable "trouble" in the intricate and sensitive equipment of central offices and in the extensive system of out side lines, overhead and underground, the telephone service occasionally suffers from disturbance of the circuits or instruments on the subscribers' premises. This kind of "trouble" is difficult to locate, and so is especially annoying; but almost always it is perfectly avoidable, being caused by unconscious carelessness.

In one case when a subscriber reported that he was unable to talk through his telephone at all it was found that a member of the family had laid a pair of spectacles on top of the bell box of the instrument so that the steel bows touched against the binding posts to which the outside wires are fastened, thus "cutting out" both transmitter and receiver by closing the circuit before it reached them. Another subscriber declared that people who called him had been told "They don't answer" when he knew positively that the bell had not rung at all. His difficulty turned out to be due not to any failure of "Central" to perform her work properly, but to the fact that his wife had muffled the telephone bells while the baby took his nap and had forgotten to remove the muffer.

Inside telephone wiring is insulated with the greatest care to protect it against dampness and to keep the wires separated from each other. It cannot be made proof against everything though. Every now and then a subscriber's "station" fails to work properly because some one stands a dripping umbrella where it saturates the telephone cord and spoils the insulation, or a careless office boy does similar damage in polishing a desk set with liquid instead of with camellia leather. Leaky plumbing raises havoc with interior circuits every now and then. Here and there is a nervous person who has a habit of jabbing with a pen the green silk cord of his desk set while he is telephoning, with the result, of course, that he eventually spoils the insulation, which brings the wires of the circuit into contact and puts them out of commission. And many subscribers "fidget" with the green cord when talking, twisting and bending it between their fingers till one of these days the copper strands inside break completely off.

Considerable "unsatisfactory service" is caused by subscribers attaching to the telephone instrument devices of one sort or another that interfere with its proper working. Nothing should be fastened to the transmitter by screwing the mouthpiece through it, for instance; that disarranges the adjustment. For obvious reasons nothing should be stretched over the opening of the mouthpiece; that puts an obstacle between the voice and the diaphragm. The mouthpiece can be kept perfectly clean by wiping it out with a dry cloth; no liquid should be used.

Carpenters, paper hangers, painters and other workmen who, with the best intentions in the world, move the wires temporarily that they may better do their work, frequently either break the circuit in doing so, or injure it in their attempts to replace things as they found them. When it is necessary to disturb telephone wiring for any purpose, the company should be asked to send its own expert men; and it will save the subscriber loss of time and interruption of service if he will notify his manager at once of any kind of "trouble," so that it may be traced and remedied as quickly as possible. There is no charge for calling the exchange office for this purpose, whether the call is made from a subscriber's "station" or from a public pay station.

CITIZEN SIGHTSEER.

The CITIZEN Sightseer gets Complicated at the expense of the clergy. Mistakes an auction for a lawn party, in Mexico, stops long enough to see Eaton sell a lot of dyspepsia promoting pie filling, and a mixing bowl, all (whole). Visits the coal and wood yard of the Rumford Fuel Company.

The sightseer went to Mexico via the Riddellville toll bridge the other day, and knowing that years ago a law was put into effect that ministers should travel over toll bridges free, he expressed his regret to the toll gatherer that he was not of the cloth.

The toll man replied, "Well, when you first began crossing here if you had said you were a minister I should have let you pass free."

The sightseer has been thinking about the remark, more or less, since, and is still in doubt as to whether the clergy or the newspaper fraternity should feel offended.

Passing up the street the sightseer saw what appeared to be a lawn party, at the house next beyond Mrs. Abbott's. As he approached the house he saw a man on the piazza, waving his arms, and when still nearer, the scribe heard a voice declaiming the virtue of some household utensil.

At that time the speaker stopped, and deliberately removed his coat, and the scribe, being timid, hesitated about going too near, but he soon found out that the auctioneer had not seen him, and that he knew that "Eaton" people was not the auctioneer's reputation. There was a crowd there, and teams lined the street, and bidding was quite brisk. In fact the bids came in whenever the bidders could get a chance to wedge them in while the auctioneer was getting breath for a fresh string of adjectives describing the qualities of the article he had to sell.

The first thing he sold after the arrival of the sightseer was a big jar of jam. The auctioneer said it was pie jam, and he extolled the virtue of it in glowing terms. He got a bid of 15 cents. Further praise of the stuff brought the bid up to 25 cents. He then explained, in apparent despair, that the jar contained enough pie filling to cause more dyspepsia than all the dyspepsia that all the drugs contained in all the drug stores of the town. The bids began to go up by leaps and bounds and the jar and its dyspepsia creating contents sold for $1.25.

The father confessor of that auctioneer has a sorry job on his hands to make that matter right. The case is very much worse than it would be if there had been expressed in the salesman's face any feeling of sorrow. The hardened wretch even seemed pleased with the exploit.

Perhaps the sightseer is too sensitive, for he could not fail to see the lack of joy that came to the face of the woman who got the prize. There was a combination of love and joy in the transaction, as those who were there will testify.

As the sightseer could not stand the pressure of the auctioneer's pleadings, he quit the place, for fear he would bid off something that would be a burden to him.

Just as he was leaving the lawn, the auctioneer held up a large earthen mixing bowl and informed the audience that it was "all hole." They laughed at him, but some one bought the bowl, hole and all, for a good price.

Wandering along the highway, the sightseer did not encounter anything more startling than a man who volunteered to pay a bill he owed the CITIZEN, until he found himself on the other side of Swift river, and in the wood and coal yard of the Rumford Fuel Company.

The location of the company's yard is where the Blanchard & Twitchell mill formerly was. They started the business October 1, 1906, and have built up a large trade. They built a cutting house, the front of which is used for the office, and the balance for a tenement where one of their teamsters lives. This provides an attendant at all times on the place.

The company built a wood house 60 feet long and 40 feet wide—it is divided into five sheds. The electrically run saw conveyor carries the wood, all fitted for the stove, from the sawing and splitting shed, and automatically drops it in whichever stall its grade belongs. The saw and splitting machines are run by a 22 horse power electric motor.

The most of the wood comes by rail, and the track runs along side of the wood house, and the cargoes are easily unloaded and generally saved and split as soon as received. The coal sheds are also alongside the rails and a regular coal pocket is now being fitted for the fall and winter trade. The company has a process by which they are always supplied with dry wood. They sell both bituminous and anthracite coal.

The members of this company are E. W. Howe and W. F. H. Waterhouse. Mr. Waterhouse is the manager, and the man actively engaged in the business. He is well known in town, and is highly esteemed for uprightness of character, and no more agreeable man is to be found doing business at the Falls than he. Mr. Howe is too well known to need mentioning here. He takes no active part in the business.

MUSINGS.

The following bit of rhetoric is an extract of a letter received from the pen of a man whose active, and religiously inclined mind, has observed intelligently and carefully the things of life for nearly eighty-six years. In times past he has from his western home sent me many ideas that have helped in forming a philosophy of life. This is sent as a final contribution to the discussion of the great world and life problems that we have engaged in. It is printed for the beauty of its rhetoric and to show the vigor of a mind weighted with many years; and not as an endorsement of the deductions.

MANLY A. BRIGHAM.

BY THE SEA.

It is there one can sit and reflect and meditate upon the wild, mighty and mysterious monster—quivering, trembling, heaving, roaring, sighing,—enveloping the earth like a serpent—an emblem of human passions. There it lies precisely as it lay in the beginning when God made its bed.

Man has marred, beautified and altered the face of terra firma, but old ocean remains the same—undisfigured by a single scar or blemish, and adorned by the least evidence of improvement.

Time leaves tracks behind him, as he travels on the earth, as palpable as rabbit tracks after a light fall of snow. By these signs man has been able to form a fair idea of the age of the earth; but as for finding any traces of his footsteps upon "the sea, the open sea," you might as well look for dunes, patches and stretches upon the blue canopy of heaven. Nations have ploughed it as a field, but where are the furrows? They have sown it with silver and gold, but what of the harvest? Wrecks, conch shells and sea weeds. Scooping up a portion of it in the hollow of my hand, I say, can this be a portion of the fluid that laves Labrador, washes the coast of California, heaves against the Hebrides, rushes itself about the poles, and greets before the rock of Gibraltar? Can it be possible that this same spoonful of water helped to form the great flood in the time of Noah? How many times since has it visited the cloud ocean above and descended in the form of rain and dew.

When I look upon the wide ocean and consider how much more room it occupies than the land I can't help thinking that its inhabitants are of more consequence, in one sense, than we who till the soil. There is certainly some design in it. Who knows after all but whales, porpoises, dolphins and codfish are of more importance than proud man? They do not commit any of the sins and improprieties that we land mortals are guilty of.

We, who live and ponder on the mysteries of God's universe, are tossed about by the billows of care and trouble—driven by tempestuous circumstances into uncongenial quarters—sometimes finding plenty of crumbs floating upon a fortunate tide; but more often looking in vain for them.

The storms and sickness of old age at last beat us—we live in the memories of days long since departed—the spirit flutters and down we drop into the dark mysterious and unfathomed ocean of eternity, to sleep sweetly and better, I trust, than we do here.

M. A. CLEVELAND.

Lesson From the Past.
President Lincoln laid down the newspaper he was reading and took a turn about the room.

"I reckon," he said, with his characteristic smile, "they call me 'Honest Old Abe' to distinguish me from the other Abes."

Even then, however, with his accustomed gentleness and consideration, he refrained from specifying whether it was the New York Abe or the San Francisco Abe he had in mind.—Chicago Tribune.

YOUR LANDLORD

is always glad to see you when you call to pay the rent, but it's different when you ask to have a room repapered or a few new shingles placed on the roof.

People Who Own Their Own Homes

enjoy a feeling of independence that is one of the greatest advantages they hold over the renter. When they want some little improvement made upon the premises, they do not have to ask a favor of some one else, but can go ahead and make it, and pay for it with the money that in the other case would go for rent.

Let Us Sell You A Home.

We would like to show you a six room house, lot and half, spring water, good garden, situate in Mexico, price $1,300. Terms: $200 cash, balance $11.00 per month.

A Two story double tenement house in Mexico, rents for $24.00 per month, lot 60x100, price $2,600, terms $200 cash, balance $24.00 per month.

Eight room house in Mexico, sewer connections, spring water, rents for $20.00, price $2,200, terms $200 cash, balance $20 per month.

Beauty, the cynic's scorn, is in the eye of the beholder, or in an angle of vision—mere product of limelight, point of view, desire—but Beulah Sands' was beauty beyond cavil, superior to all analysis, as definite as the evening star against the twilight sky. In height medium, girlish, but with a figure maturely modeled, charmingly full and rounded, yet by very perfection of proportion, escaping suggestion of "plumpness." The head, surrounded and crowned with a wealth of dark golden hair, rested on a neck that would have seemed short had its slender column sprung less graciously from the lovely lines of the breast and shoulders beneath. It was on the face, however, and finally on the eyes that one's glances inevitably lingered—
the face rose-tinted, with dimples in either of the full cheeks, "entering laughing protest against the sad droop that brought slightly down the corners of a mouth too large perhaps for beauty, if the coral curve of the lips had been less exquisitely perfect. The straight, thin-nosed nose, the broad forehead, the square, full jaw almost as low as the points where they come beneath the ears as at the chin, suggested dignity and high resolve coupled with a power of purpose, rare in woman. The combination of forehead, jaw, and nose was seldom seen. Had it been possessed by a man it would surely have driven him to the tented field for his profession. But the greatest glory of Beulah Sands was her eyes—large, full, very gray, very blue, vivid with all the glamour of her personality, full of smiles and tears and spirituality and passion; one instant, frankly innocent, they illuminated the face of a blonde Madonna; the next,
seen through the extraordinary, long,
jet-black eyelashes, underneath the finely pencilled black brows, they expressed, coquetted, allured. I afterward found much of this girl's purely physical fascination lay in this strange blending of English fairness with Andalusian tints, though the adding quality of her charm was surely in an exaltation of spirit of which she might make the dullest conscious. As she stood looking at Bob in my office that long-ago noon, gracefully at ease in a suit of gray, with a gray-feathered turban on her head, and tiny lace bands at neck and wrist, she was very exquisite, exceedingly dainty, and, though southerner of southerners, very unlike the typical brunette girl who comes out of Dixie land.

This girl who came into our office that July Saturday, just in time to interfere with the outing Bob Brownley
and I had laid out, and who was destined to divert my chum's heretofore smooth-flowing river of existence and turn it into an alternation of roaring rushes and deadly calms, was truly the most exquisite creature one could conceive of. I know my thought must have been Bob's, too, for his eyes were riveted on her face. She dropped the black lashes like a veil as she went on:

"Mr. Brownley, I have just come from Sands Landing. I am very anxious to talk with you on a business matter. I have brought a letter to you from my father. If you have other engagements I can wait until Monday, although," and the black veiling lashes lifted, showing the half-laughing, halfpathetic eyes, "I wanted much to lay my business before you at the earliest moment possible."

There was a faint touch of appeal in the charming voice she spoke that was irresistible, and we were both willing to forget we had lunch waiting us on the Tribesman.

"Step into my office, Miss Sands, and all my time is yours," said Bob, as he opened the door between his office and mine. After I had sent a note to my wife, saying we might be delayed for an hour or two, I settled down to wait for Bob in the general office, and it was a long wait. Thirty minutes went into an hour and an hour into two before Bob and Miss Sands came out. After he had put her in a cab for her hotel, he said in a tone curiously intent: "Jim, I have got to talk with you, got to get some of your good advice. Suppose we hustle along to the yacht and after lunch you tell Kate we have some business to go over. I don't want to keep that girl waiting any longer than possible for an answer I cannot give until I get your ideas."

After lunch, on the bow end of the upper deck Bob relieved himself. Relieved is the word, for from the minute
he had put Miss Sands into the carriage until then, it was evident even to my wife that his thoughts were anywhere but upon our outing.

"Jim," he began in a voice that shook in spite of his efforts to make it sound calm, "there is no disguising the fact that I am mightily worked up about this matter, and I want to do everything possible for this girl. No need of my telling you how sacred we have got to keep what she has just let me into. You'll see as I go along that it is sacred, and I know you will look at it as I do. Miss Sands must be helped out of her trouble."

"Judge Lee Sands, her father, is the head of the old Sands family of Virginia. The Virginia Sands don't take off their bonnets to another family in this country, or elsewhere, for that matter, for anything that really counts.

They have huge brains, learning, money and fixed position since Virginia was first settled. They are the best people of our state. It is a cross-road saying in Virginia that a Sands of Sands Landing can go to the bench, the United States senate, the house, or the governor's chair for the starting, and nearly all of the men-folks have held one or all of these honors for generations. The present judge has held them all. I don't know him personally, although my people and his have been thick from away back. Sands Landing on the James is some 50 miles above our home. The judge, Beulah Sands' father, is close on to 70, and I have heard mother and father say is a stalwart, a Virginia stalwart. Being rich
—that is, what we Virginians call rich,
a million or so—he has been very active in affairs, and I knew before his daughter told me, that he was the

Yes, and that hired cur of his, too, who prostitutes a good family name
and position, and an inherited ability the Almighty intended for more honest uses than the trapping of victims on whose purses his gutter-born master has set lecherous eyes. And, Jim, as I listened, a troop of old friends invaded my memory—friends whom I have not seen since before I went to Harvard, friends with whom I spent many a happy hour in my old Virginia home, friends born of my imagination, stalwart, rugged crusaders, who carried the sword and the cross and the banner inscribed "For Honor and for God." Old friends who would troop into my boyhood and trumpet, "Bob, don't forget, when you're a man, that the goal is honor, and the code? Do unto your neighbor as you would have your neighbor do unto you. Don't forget that millions is the crest of the groundlings." And, Jim, I thought my friends looked at me with reproachful eyes as they said, "You are well on the road, Bob Brownley, and in time your heart and soul will bear the hallmark of the snaky S on the two upright bars, and you will be but a frenzied fellow in the Dirty Dollar army." Jim, Jim Randolph, as I listened to that agonizing tale of the changing of that girl's heaven to hell, I did not see that helo you and I have thought surrounded the sign of Randolph & Randolph.
I did not see it, Jim, but I did see myself, and I didn't feel proud of the picture. My God, Jim, is it possible you and I have joined the nobility of Dirty Dollars? Is it possible we are leaving trails along our life's path like that Reinhart left through the home of these Virginians, such trails as this girl has shown me?"

ABOUT 50 POLANDERS ENGAGED IN FREE FIGHT ON BRIDGE STREET.

Joseph Pareigis Reported to Have Been Killed.

Last Saturday night at about 11:30 o'clock a free fight occurred between factions of Polanders, on Bridge street, and one man was so badly hurt that it was reported that he was dead. His skull was fractured. His name is Joseph Pareigis.

The officers were summoned to quell the disturbance and they arrested G. Pleupis, John Lobikis and John Sleklis. Monday afternoon they were arraigned in the municipal court. Twelve witnesses were called and the longest trial that ever took place in Rumford began. All the testimony was through an interpreter.

The witnesses were not disposed to tell any more than they could help and it was very hard to get at the true state of things. The substance seems to be that the natives of one part of Poland are at enmity with those coming from another section, and a dispute arose in the club room over Hall's stable that night, and they went out on the street to settle it with a fight.

After diligent inquiry, taking a day and a half, the exact occurrences were not clearly brought out. Beer bottles were used as weapons and it was a blow from a beer bottle that cracked the skull of Pareigis.

It was brought out in the evidence that the Polanders on Canal street contributed 25 or 30 men to the scrimmage. Although there were upwards of 50 men about or engaged in the fight, but two or three saw any of it, and while there were many bottles used and several men hit with them, no man was called who owned up to wielding such a weapon.

Parker appeared for the county and McCarthy for the respondents. They made their pleas Tuesday evening.

The lawyers finished their appeals about 9 o'clock Tuesday night and Judge Stearns discharged John Sleklis. Others are held at $10,000 bonds. Michael Gustafis was accused of fighting Joe Pareigis. Surrendered himself Tuesday night and Wednesday morning was bound over in $10,000 bonds.

UNEARTHED AFTER 37 CENTURIES.

Captain Berry Writes About the Marvels and Peculiarities of a Mediterranean Islet.

We are indebted to Mr. E. P. Goodwin of Mexico for the use of a very interesting letter from the Island of Payra, off the coast of Crete, written by Capt. B. H. Berry, one of Mr. Goodwin's winter neighbors at Southern Pines, N. C. Mr. Berry has travelled extensively and has had many interesting experiences when in company with his nephew, who is engaged in the excavation of ancient cities.

Accompanying the letter are pencil sketches of 37 different utensils made of bronze, stone and baked clay, which are among the many articles found in the buried city of something like 37 centuries ago, before the use of iron was known. The bronze, stone and clay work they had attained to show skill in manufacture, and artistic sense in decoration. The lasting quality of these materials has furnished to our day a visible record of the enterprise and capacity of those early workers. Several sizes of bronze fish hooks were shown, that in shape are exactly like those used today. Needles, pins, chisels, axe and spear heads fashioned from bronze resemble in shape those common to us, as does a hammer head of black and white marble. Several styles of cups, vases and bowls were shown, that equal in beauty of outline any now in use. The stone lamps alone are of form and workmanship uncommon to us. A sketch of the chevron found on the arm of the remains of the Roman soldier spoken of in the letter, is also shown.

The Island of Payra,
Off the Coast of Crete,
June 30, 1907.

Dear Sir:

Three weeks ago camp was established on the small Island of Payra, separated from the comparatively large Island of Crete by a strait about a mile in width. On the south side of Payra a narrow strip about two hundred feet across at its base and five hundred feet long pushes out into the sea, on which in former times, (2,000 B. C.) was located a thriving Minoan city that was destroyed by invaders from the north in 1800 B. C., and since, has lain with its foundations blanketed by the overthrown walls they supported. Digging into the deposit brings to light a large range of objects in bronze, stone and baked clay, that describe the condition and character of those times. Some eighteen centuries after the invaders had accomplished their work and nature had, from all surface indications, taken possession of the site and the Romans were ruling the Mediterranean world, they evidently found it to their interest to establish a coast guard station here, as the terminal point of the spur carries today evidence of their occupation.

In opening up one of the thoroughfares of the old settlement, the remains of a Roman soldier were discovered. Thoroughfares in those days were not remarkable for their width, as you could stand with outstretched arms and touch with your hands the sidewalks of buildings bordering the way. This soldier was evidently a man well on in life or his bones would hardly have lasted through so many centuries so well preserved. His left arm carried a plate of bronze, three inches in diameter, across which was drawn a band of cloth or leather about an inch wide. This was perforated and riveted through to the plate below; a metal form that evidently indicated his rank; most likely that of what we call a non-commissioned officer today. The bronze plate resting on his arm formed a complete protection from moisture; and under its center portion were two thick, masses of a coarse brown material in perfect condition; possessing, after all that lapse of time, sufficient strength of fiber to permit handling.

The octopus season is on, on this coast. They are in size all the way from little creepers with arms stretching out for two feet to more mature creatures that would be extremely dangerous for a man to deal with alone. They are cut up and broiled for eating, with a condiment of native sauce. A wild herb known as marlon would be a very desirable addition to our side of the world, if it would consent to grow and thrive here; but, like a good many other attractive features of this land of rock and waste and sterile avidity, if taken away from the special rock conditions on which it subsists and placed in what would be considered an abundance of plant growing soil that abounds about Southern Pines, it would change its nature entirely or die of vexation.

After the spring rains are over in April, vegetation advances very rapidly. Grapes mature in July. Cherries are already ripe. Garden truck is grown on low ground where a rude form of irrigation is practiced.

The natives live in small village communities around a large church structure, and go out for miles on the hill sides and in the narrow valleys to cultivate what they find the location will support. A thin native wine is used by all classes. Coarse black bread and beans constitute their principle diet, with goat's milk. Of meat they rarely eat, and pork is not appreciated at all. The men wear petticoats. The women their heads with coverings. They are strong and enduring, being great burden bearers, as mountain paths are not inviting to vehicles and only passable for human feet or the hoof of pony or donkey. From the scarcity of storage these latter are an expensive luxury.

On the island soon after nightfall, just as you are about to drop off into forgetfulness, will be heard the most unutterably weird sounds rending the air. Inquiry developed their origin to be a bird known in this region as "Soul-lost." Personal investigation developed that these abandoned shades of immortality take the form of sea-gulls, that are evidently forever bewailing their fate by uttering heart-rending lamentations, to which the sounds that go up from the wailing place at Jerusalem is a soothing harmony.

Yours etc.,
B. H. BERRY.

PASADENA SCENE OF ODD REUNION.

Charles P. Mason Visits Sister He Has Not Seen for 25 Years.

PASADENA, July 25.—After a separation of more than a quarter of a century, a brother and sister have just been reunited in this city. Charles Peregrine Mason and his sister, who is now Mrs. Harry Painter of 190 North Chester avenue, had not seen each other for more than twenty-five years until the bronzed and stalwart man, who has been during all these years of separation engaged in mining pretty much all over the western world, presented himself at the door a few days ago. Recognition was instantaneous and mutual between the brother and sister, who are the only living members of the family, their parents having died within the last few years.

Charles Peregrine Mason is a cousin of John Mason, the owner of the opera house in Los Angeles that bears the family patronymic. It was the father of the latter who located the famous Silver King mine in the early days of the mining fever in Arizona, and it was this discovery that made a prospector and miner of Charles Peregrine Mason, who was at the time of the discovery a student at the University of Iowa. The father of Charles Mason was Freeborn Mason, and the latter and two brothers, Charles and Aaron, were the owners of the Silver King. They sent to Monona, Clayton county, Iowa, for their brother, and he joined them at Phoenix. Later Freeborn Mason returned to Iowa and had his son Charles join him and return with him to the mining fields of Arizona. Mrs. Mason and their daughter remained at Monona, and it was destined that this separation should be final, for the father died and is buried in the territory where he long sought for mineral wealth. Mrs. Mason died about seven years ago at her old home, and is buried in Monona.

Charles Mason quickly caught the maling fever and it has kept him on the move from the day that he left the Iowa university in the early summer of the year 1882. He has wandered up and down the Pacific slope, has interests in the Hawaiian Islands and in Alaska, as well as in other sections of the country. For the last few years Mr. Mason has been located about forty miles east of Dawson, where he has been successful in his mining ventures. During all his years of wandering he has kept in regular correspondence with his sister, and a short time ago he wrote to her that he had about made up his mind to quit roaming and settle down, as he had made his "pile." According to Mr. Mason the winters around Dawson are growing more severe, and he finds keeping warm with the thermometer registering ninety below zero a little more trying than the salubrious climate of Pasadena. He will remain here with his sister and brother-in-law for the present.
